OUR STORY

In the 1990s, Mary Kamau having recently accepted Jesus as her Savior, began to share the message of Christ in local mission work. Along the way, Mary met a young worship leader who intrigued her with his stories of growing up in Mathare Valley—home to one of the oldest and largest slums in Nairobi, Kenya. She asked him to take her there so she could experience it for herself. What she saw transformed her life forever. Mary began a routine, visiting the people and families of Mathare Valley weekly. Wallace and Mary quickly realized that while the people of Mathare Valley were hungry for the word of Christ, they also needed a way to meet their most basic needs. The two were joined by a board of directors and the local community to begin building what would later be known as Missions of Hope International, opening their first school, Mathare Family Hope Center in Sept 2000.
